The commonest form of forgetfulness, I suppose, occurs in the matter of posting letters. So common is it that I am always reluctant to trust a departing visitor to post an important letter. So little do I rely on his memory that I put him on his oath before handing the letter to him. As for myself, any one who asks me to post a letter is a poor judge of character. Even if I carry the letter in my hand, I then put it for safety into one of my pockets and forget all about it. After that, it has an adventurous life till a long chain of circumstances leads to a number of embarrassing questions being asked and I am compelled to produce the evidence of my guilt from my pocket. This, it might be thought, must be due to a lack of interest in other people's letters; but that cannot be the explanation, for I forget to post even of the few letters that I myself remember to write. As for leaving articles in trains and taxis I am not too bad in such matters. I can remember almost anything except books and walking sticks and I can often remember even books. Walking-sticks I find it quite impossible to keep. I have an old fashioned taste for them and buy them frequently but no sooner do I pay a visit to a friend's house or go on a journey in a train, than another stick is on its way into the world of the lost.
